OAHU COLLEGE CONCERT

MUSICAL TREAT TO BE GIVEN ON FRIDAY EVENING.

The Exhibit of the Term's Work
Shows a Remarkable Improvement—
Professor Hosmer Pleased.

A rare musical treat will be given the friends of Oahu college who attend the concert given by the faculty and students in Paubai hall, Punahou, Friday evening. The newly organized orchestra, of which everyone at Oahu is proud, will make its initial appearance in public. Professor Ingalls is the leader. The Glee Club will be on hand and Miss Jessie Reeve Axtell will sing. Professor Howard has kindly consented to give a reading. There will be many other features in the entertainment. Professor F. A. Hosmer announces that all friends of the college are most cordially invited to attend.

The exhibit of the term's work at Oahu last Saturday showed a remarkable improvement among the pupils. Miss French's classes in hand-drawing, China painting, pastel, charcoal and pen and ink sketches, have been doing excellent work.

Professor Colsten in charge of the mechanical drawing department, was the recipient of many compliments on the creditable showing of his pupils. The pupils of Professor Howard in the commercial department, display much talent and aptitude. Those students who have been studying science under the tutelage of Professor Ingalls, are deserving of praise for their good work. There were exhibits in other departments. No one is more pleased with the results of the term's work than Professor Hosmer.

Love was caught in Psyche's hair.

THE SCOTCH RACE.

Sandy's Condition Was Critical, and He Wanted to Hear the Bagpipes.

Perhaps because the guest of the evening was a Scotchman, or possibly because one man in the party had a Scotch story to tell, the conversation was brought around to a discussion of the Scotch race. "It was while I was attached to a London hospital," said a physician, "that I witnessed a marvelous cure of a Scotchman. We will call him Sandy, though that is not his name. One of his legs had been so badly mangled in an accident that we decided to amputate it. The shock was a severe one to Sandy, and when he regained consciousness after the operation it was evident that he had not vitally enough left to recover. 'Mon, ahn I going to dee?' he asked. 'We hope for the best, Sandy,' I said, 'but your condition is critical. Is there any Scotch dish that you would like?' Sandy said that he didn't want anything to eat, but if he could hear the bagpipes just once more he could die happy. 'We didn't have a piper on our staff, but one of the nurses found one in a chop-house not far away. When the piper arrived, Sandy was so weak that he could not speak. He looked grateful. Although it was not in accordance with our hospital rules, we hadn't the heart to refuse Sandy's dying request. I gave the signal, and the piper began to play. Sandy smiled peacefully, and at the end of the second tune he had gone asleep. His temperature and pulse showed a remarkable improvement, and because Sandy was a good fellow and we thought he might call for the piper again before he breathed his last we kept the piper.

"Two hours later Sandy awoke, and the first thing that he asked for was the piper. Again that weird noise filled the hospital, and once more Sandy went to sleep, stronger and better than we had expected him to be. A third time he awoke, and again the piper played. When Sandy once again fell asleep, to our amazement the crisis had passed and he was on the road to recovery. He is now alive and well."

"The Scotch are a wonderful race," commented Roy V. Somerville. "Now, my grandmother was"—

"But I haven't told you the sad sequel," interrupted the physician. "We had been so much interested in Sandy during the night that we had neglected our other patients. Sandy did recover, as I have said, but when we made the rounds in the morning we found all the English patients stiff in bed. They were all dead."—New York Sun.
